Meghan Bond - Volunteer and Community Engagement Co-ordinator at Harvest Market, Launceston, Tasmania. Meghan started as a volunteer and was so impressed that she had to get involved with the management team to complement her day job with the Tasmanian Department of Health. Meghan brings experience in research, evaluation, project management and engagement to this role. Meghan's passion for local produce and community building was strengthened by undertaking PHD studies centred on climate change and sustainability.

Justin Cantafio - Food systems thinker, farmers' market champion, relocalisation specialist. Justin is passionate about all things local. His professional interests also include food hubs, cooperatives, decentralisation, economic recirculation, and institutional procurement. A 2023 Nuffield Scholar, Justin lives and breathes farmers' markets and local food systems. He presently serves as the Executive Director of Farmers' Markets of Nova Scotia, a non-profit cooperative of over 40 farmer's markets. He is the Co-founder and President of Canadian Farmers' Markets, Canada's national farmers' market association and a founding member of the World Farmers' Markets Coalition.

The Rubbish Trip - Hannah and Liam will discuss market waste reduction, drawing on their experience of zero waste living, Liam's experience as Kaicycle compost manager, and Hannah's experience researching reusable packaging systems through Takeaway Throwaways and Reuse Aotearoa.

The Classroom - Seth will take you through a brief overview of the social networks that'll help you reach more people and grow your audiences. He'll share some up-to-date tips and tricks on how to get the most out of your social media and will also be available to answer any questions you might have after the seminar too.
